Northern Pulp Nova Scotia [electronic resource] : focus report : replacement effluent treatment facility

Halifax, N.S. : Dillon Consulting Ltd., 2019.

xxxix, 205 p. + appendices.

"In January 2019, Northern Pulp submitted an environmental assessment registration document (EARD) for the approval to replace the BHETF with an on-site ETF. Following the submission of the EARD, Nova Scotia Environment (NSE) requested additional information to support a final decision regarding the approval of the environmental assessment. The request for additional information was provided as a Terms of Reference for a Focus Report. This document, the Focus Report, provides a science-based review including additional data beyond what was in Northern Pulp's EARD submission in January 2019. Over twenty different science-based investigations and analyses have been conducted to provide additional evidence in describing the potential environmental impacts and their mitigation measures for the new proposed ETF. These scientific analyses include environmental baseline studies, archaeological investigations, receiving water modeling, engineering designs, and Mi'kmaq Ecological Knowledge Studies and many more. Overall, the culmination of this work provides science-based evidence that will enable the environmental assessment to be approved.

Additionally, as requested in the Terms of Reference, a re-aligned treated effluent pipeline route was also determined, and subject to science based analyses"--cf. executive summary.
